In Come Fly With Me, Mark Joseph Good, recipient of two Governor's Distinguished Service Awards, the Florida Park Service Heroism Award, and the National Park Service Award of Valor, gives us a glimpse into his demanding, challenging, and very rewarding life as a master falconer. Through engaging, insightful anecdotes, you will meet many of the raptors he has worked-and bonded-with throughout the years. One such bird is Thorin Oakenshield, a rare Eurasian Eagle Owl whose tale is one of intrigue involving the illegal pet trade, smugglers, and government secrecy.

The ancient sport of falconry, the art of hunting with a trained bird of prey to catch live quarry, has a long history, from the Product description

Review

"Mr. Good's depth of knowledge and experience in this area is most awe-inspiring. Through his eloquent delivery, Mr. Good enlightened all of us not just to facts and figures regarding this little-understood aspect of nature, but rather educated us to understand the ways in which birds of prey impact our lives as humans."

Howard A. Kerner Professor, English and Communications Winter Haven, Florida

About the Author

Mark Joseph Good was born in Baltimore, Maryland, but left his home state at the age of nineteen. Mark served over forty years between Florida and Colorado in forest management and forest wildland firefighting. Throughout his career, Mark has received many distinguished awards: -The Governor's Distinguished Service Award under two Florida governors: Lawton Chiles and Jeb Bush-The Department of Agriculture Outstanding Service Award presented by Commissioner of Agriculture Bob Crawford-The Florida Park Service Heroism Award for saving lives during river flooding during a storm-The Award of Valor presented by National Park Service Director Fran Manella for saving drowning boaters in an alligator-infested river at night-The Interpreter of the Year (public speaker) for the Department of Environmental Protection within the Park Service of Florida These forms of recognition are but some of many over the years.
